THE ARCHITECTURE OF EDWIN LUTYENS AND INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

SATURDAY EVENING, APRIL 29, 2006, 7:30 PM - 9:30 PM
BRUCE MUSEUM OF ARTS AND SCIENCE, ONE MUSEUM DRIVE, GREENWICH, CT

PALLADIUM MUSICUM, INC., a non-profit Greenwich, CT organization, is pleased to announce the third event of its 2006 season. The theme of the 2006 season is celebrating British music contemporaneous with architecture, gardens, and the Arts and Crafts Movement in England, centered on Edwin Lutyens (1869 - 1944), architect of Goddards, Surrey, UK, and Gertrude Jekyll (1833 - 1932), British garden designer and horticulturist.

The event will feature a lecture with slides on Edwin Lutyens by Margaret Richardson, noted authority on Lutyens, and Honorary Curator of Architecture of the Royal Academy, London and a founding member of the Lutyens Trust. Mrs. Richardson will be introduced by John Bucknall, architect, Wells, Somerset, UK, Architectural Advisor to the British Landmark Trust on the restoration of Palladio's Villa Saraceno, Vicenza, Italy and member of the Advisory Committee of Palladium Musicum, Inc. The Tourmaline String Quartet, the quartet in residence at the Ridgefield Symphony Orchestra, will perform the music of Elgar, Vaughan Williams, Purcell, and the premiere of the Goddards Suite of English Music, with soloist, Pamela Kuhn, soprano and Artistic Advisor of Palladium Musicum, Inc.

Corporate sponsors of this event are Peridot Fine Jewelry and Susan Lockwood Architects of Greenwich, CT.

Margaret Richardson will speak on “Edwin Lutyens: Craftsman in Building and Architect of Country Houses” and will cover the development of Edwin Lutyens’ early work in the 1890s and his principal Arts and Crafts houses, namely, Munstead Wood, Orchards, Goddards and Deanery Garden. She will describe his beginnings and his training in the offices of Sir Ernest George (1839-1922), one of the most successful of the later Victorian architects. She will examine his great admiration for both Philip Webb (1831-1915), designer of the famous Arts and Crafts Red House (1859) for William Morris, and the late Victorian architect, Norman Shaw (1831-1913).

In particular, Mrs. Richardson will illustrate how, under the influence of Gertrude Jekyll, whom he met as a younger man when she was already established in her profession, he found his own personal manner of building which was so perfectly expressed at Munstead Wood, Ms. Jekyll’s residence in Surrey.

Mrs. Richardson will also examine Lutyens’ more radical ‘Free-Style’ buildings of the late 1890s - Rosneath, Berrydowne and Le Bois des Moutiers at Varengeville in France - which are often more advanced and experimental than many designed by his diehard contemporaries of the Arts and Crafts Movement.

Although Lutyens turned to work in a more discipline, classical style in the early 1900s - his Wrenaissance, as he called it - he often returned in his later career to the vernacular and textured ways of building, as will be shown in two outstanding schemes: Lambray Castle and Great Dixter. Her lecture will conclude with a discussion of Lutyens’ two beautifully crafted masterpieces: the Viceroy’s House in Delhi, India and the Cenotaph in London. Mrs. Richardson is currently working on a book on the architecture of Edwin Lutyens.

John Bucknall, who will introduce Margaret Richardson, is currently an architect residing in Wells, Somerset, UK, whose practice is devoted to historic preservation and restoration of historic buildings, churches, and the refurbishment of private residences. He has been an active member of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings (SPAB) since 1978 and an inspecting architect for The Churches Conservation Trust. Previously in his career, he worked for the British National Trust undertaking several major restoration projects and is a co-founder of the William Morris Craft Fellowship, currently serving on the Fellowship Selection Committee.

The Tourmaline String Quartet will perform selections of music from the Edwardian period, primarily, by composers who were especially admired and liked by Edwin Lutyens: Sir Edward Elgar, Ralph Vaughan Williams, and Henry Purcell. Some of the selections to be performed by the Tourmaline String Quartet were originally composed for voice and have been arranged for this occasion for string quartet. Other selections to be performed were originally English folk tunes adapted by Vaughan Williams to accompany the text of hymns which will again be performed as the original folk tunes.

Taken together, these selections will comprise the premiere of the Goddards’ Suite of English Music.

The Tourmaline String Quartet was born in 1999 on a horse farm in the lush hills of the Hudson Valley where four of the area’s premiere musicians gathered to share and expand their musical gifts. Early concerts in Dutchess, Orange, and Westchester Counties were greeted with outstanding ovations and culminated in their residence with the Ridgefield Symphony Orchestra in Connecticut. The members of the quartet are Betty-Jean Hagen, violin, Rachel Handyman, violin, Suzanne Corey-Sahlin, viola, and Melissa Westgate, cello.

The Ridgefield Press has written: "The members of the Tourmaline String Quartet are a well-matched group... whose combined musical sensitivity and polished technique and stage presence assure fine musical communication. They match in every way, with sonorous tone quality, ease of execution and admirable precision."

Pamela Kuhn, soprano, and Artistic Advisor of Palladium Musicum, Inc. will join the Tourmaline String Quartet in the premiere of the Goddards' Suite of English Music. A native of Oregon, she received her Master of Music in Performance from the University of Southern California, subsequently moving to London to further her studies with Vera Roza, vocal teach to Dame Kiri Te Kanawa. She has performed with such eminent artists as Geoffrey Parsons, Seiji Ozawa, Graham Johnson, Richard Armstrong, Peter Maag, and Mark Wigglesworth. She has performed with such orchestras as the London Philharmonic and the Royal Philharmonic. Her lyric spinto voice has earned her a rich European career with performances in many prestigious opera houses such as Vienna, Venice, Frankfurt, London, and has enjoyed continuous engagements with Scottish Opera. She has performed as soloist with many choral societies throughout England, Europe, and the United States. Ms. Kuhn teaches voice in her studios in London, New York City, and Greenwich, CT where she now resides with her English husband. She continues to give master classes in London and works privately with her operatic coach, Anthony Manoli.
